7. All offences punishable under this Act shall be cognizable.

8. The Central Government may, by notification in the Official Gazette, make rules for carrying out the provisions of this Act.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS

People, especially, those belonging to economically weaker sections, have a desire, nay craze, to become millionaires, overnight. In pursuit of this craze, they resort to various games of chance, such as gambling, satta, mathka, horse, races and last but not the least, lotteries. Lotteries run by Government, both Central and States, offer a greater line to poor man since it by, implication, seemingly involves Government security, even though Government lotteries are as elusive and deceptive as any other lottery and other games of chance—a trial of luck.

To exploit this instinct of the common man, the promoters of lotteries evolve varied dubious means to attract more and more people to invest in lotteries and corner the gains to serve their vested interests. Many have started daily, weekly, bi-weekly, fortnightly and monthly lotteries, with several schemes offering crores of rupees as prize-money which only lures and eludes. Soon lottery-ticket purchasing goes deep into the psyche of common man like an addiction, hard to give up.

Since lotteries, both public and private, like all games of chance, in a way, constitute gambling, depriving the common man of his hard-earned savings, in his desire for achieving an Eldorado of his dreams, a mirage, which eludes the most, and comes into reach but rarely, leaving all including winners in the condition of hard boiled addicts. Many families have been ruined in the process. Some unscrupulous elements have introduced Satta business in lottery tickets duping the people in craze of money. This gamling, though recognised as legal under the constitution and various State-laws, have to be stopped in the larger interests of the society. Even though it is a legal means to collect revenues, but at what cost?

The cost is too high for the society to afford for it leads to the ruin of a large number of families and millions of people to a condition of addiction.

Amazingly for over 46 years after independence, and forty-three years after the adoption of the Constitution of India, no Central law has been enacted for regulation or prohibition of Central and State Government lotteries under entry 40 of List—I Union List of the Seventh Schedule to the Constitution of India. It would, thus, be prudent to ban all sorts of lotteries, public and private to save the common man from this trap.

This Bill thus seeks to ban all lotteries, State run and privately floated.

MEMORANDUM REGARDING DELEGATED LEGISLATION

BILL No. 11 OF 1994

A Bill to amend the Protection of Human Rights Act, 1993

BE it enacted by Parliament in the Forty-fifth Year of the Republic of India as follows:—

1. (1) This Act may be called the Protection of Human Rights (Amendment) Act, 1994.

Short title and commencement.

- (2) It shall come into force at once.
- 2. In section 2 of the Protection of Human Rights Act, 1993 (hereinafter referred to as the principal Act), in sub-section (1), clause (a) shall be omitted.

Amendment of section 2.

3. Section 19 of the principal Act shall be omitted.

Omission of section

19.

4. For section 30 of the principal Act, the following section shall be substituted, namely:—

Substitution of new section for section 30.

"30. For the purpose of providing speedy trial of 6 fences arising out of violation of human rights, the State Government shall, with the concurrence of the Chief Justice of the High Court, by notification, set up for each district a special court to be a Human Rights Court to try the said offences,"

Human Rights Courts

10 of 1994,

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS

The Protection of Human Rights Act, 1993, which was recently enacted is a landmark legislation in the field of human rights. The Act, no doubt, meets the demand of the present times and takes care of all kinds of violations of human rights. However, there are two serious shortcomings in this Act which may render it less effective than what it was intended to be. The first shortcoming is the special procedure to be followed by the Commission in dealing with complaints of human rights violations by members of the armed forces under section 19 of the Act. The Commission, as such, has no authority to investigate or try the offences committed by the members of the armed forces. Since the members of the armed forces are likely to become target of malicious attack by vested interests and since the special procedure prescribed for members of armed forces is, in essence, against the spirit of this legislation, it would be proper that armed forces are also brought under the jurisdiction of the Commission and the special procedure with respect to armed forces be dispensed with.

The second shortcoming is that of the discretionary provision of setting up of special courts for trying the offences under this law. Since these offences are being treated on a special footing, the instrumentality of ordinary courts will be ineffective and time-consuming and hence would defeat the object of the law. Therefore, it has been proposed that it should be made obligatory on the part of the State Governments to set up special courts for each district for speedy trial of offences arising out of violations of human rights.

The Bill seeks to achieve these objects.

New Delhi; February 4, 1994. RAMESH CHENNITHALA.

FINANCIAL MEMORANDUM

Clause 4 of the Bill provides that every State Government shall, with the concurrence of the Chief Justice of the High Court, by notification, set up special Courts in each district for speedy trial of offences arising out of violation of human rights. The setting up of special Courts in Union territories will involve expenditure out of the Consolidated Fund of India. As far as States are concerned, the expenditure involved for setting up of special courts shall be borne out of the Consolidated Funds of the respective States. However, the Central Government may have to assist the State Governments in setting up of special Courts.

The Bill, therefore, if enacted, will involve expenditure out of the Consolidated Fund of India. It is likely to involve a recurring expenditure of about rupees twenty five lakh per annum.

It is also likely to involve a non-recurring expenditure of about rupees ten lakh from the Consolidated Fund of India.

BILL No. 14 of 1994

A Bill further to amend the Constitution of India.

BE it enacted by Parliament in the Forty-fifth Year of the Republic of India as follows:—

Snort title.

1. This Act may be called the Constitution (Amendment) Act, 1994.

Amendment of Tenth Schedule.

- 2. In the Tenth Schedule to the Constitution of India,—
- (i) in paragraph 1, after clause (d), the following clause shall be inserted, namely:—
 - "(e) "unattached member" means an elected member of a House who has been expelled from the membership of his original political party and declared as such by the Chairman or the Speaker of a House";
- (ii) in sub-paragraph (1) of paragraph 2, after Explanation, the following proviso shall be inserted, namely:—

"Provided that a member who has been declared as an unattached member by the Chairman or the Speaker of a House shall not be deemed to belong to the political party by which he was set up as a candidate for election as such member from the date he is declared as as an unattached member and the provisions of clause (b) of sub-paragraph (1) of this paragraph shall not apply to such member.".

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS

The Tenth Schedule to the Constitution popularly known as the antidefection law, contains certain ambiguities which have come to light in the course of its application since it has come into operation. The main problem that has arisen is with regard to the status and rights of a member who has been expelled from the membership of a political party by which he was set up as a candidate for election. As per the present provisions of the Tenth Schedule, an expelled member would be disqualified for being a member of the House if he violates any direction issued by the whip of the party which expelled him. The first landmark decision on this aspect after the law came into effect, invented the term 'Unattached' in order to get round this problem. But this term is not a part of the law, with the result, a different view can be taken in a similar situation in future. It is, therefore, necessary to amend the law so as to make this term a part of it and put an end to the ambiguity in this respect. This Bill seeks to achieve this object by suitably amending the Tenth Schedule to the Constitution of India.

NEW DELHI; February 4, 1994. RAMESH CHENNITHALA

43 of 1950.

BILL No. 13 of 1994

A Bill further to amend the Representation of the People Act, 1950.

BE it enacted by Parliament in the Forty-fifth Year of the Republic of India as follows:—

Short title and commencement.

- 1. (1) This Act may be called the Representation of the People (Amendment) Act, 1994.
 - (2) It shall come into force at once.

Amendment of section 20.

- 2. In section 20 of the Representation of the People Act, 1950, after sub-section (1B), the following sub-section shall be inserted namely:—
 - "(1C) A person absenting himself from his place of ordinary residence by reason of his employment in a foreign country shall not by reason thereof cease to be ordinarily resident therein.".

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS

A very large number of Indian citizens who are employed outside the country are not registered as voters in the electoral rolls as they are not considered to be ordinarily resident in a constituency. They bring prosperity to the country by working abroad. They participate in the economic re-construction of the country. But, they cannot participate in the electoral process as the provision of the Representation of the People Ast 1950 prohibits the citizens employed abroad from voting at elections because they are not covered under the definition of 'ordinarily desident' in a constituency.

Therefore, it is proposed to amend the Act so as to enable such citizens to vote at elections held in the country.

The Bill seeks to achieve the above object.

New Delhi; February 4, 1994.

RAMESH CHENNITHALA.

BILL No. 10 of 1994

A Bill to amend the Constitution (Sikkim) Scheduled Tribes Order, 1978.

BE it enacted by Parliament in the Forty-fifth Year of the Republic of India as follows:—

Short title.

1. This Act may be called the Constitution (Sikkim) Scheduled Tribes Order (Amendment) Act, 1994.

Substitution of new Schedule for the Schedule. 2. In the Constitution (Sikkim) Scheduled Tribes Order, 1978, for the Schedule, the following Schedule shall be substituted, namely:—

"THE SCHEDULE

- 1. Bhutia.
- 2. Chumbipa.
- 3. Dopthapa.
- 4. Dukpa.
- 5. Kagatey.
- 6. Lepcha.
- 7. Limboo.
- 8. Sherpa.
- 9. Tamang.
- 10. Tibetan.
- 11. Tromopa.
- 12. Yolmo.".

·····. -·· ----. . ---------

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS

The tribes of the Limboos and Tamangs in the State of Sikkim have not been included in the list of Scheduled Tribes for the State and, therefore, the people belonging to these tribes are not able to derive the various benefits which are provided to the Scheduled Tribes under the Constitution of India. Even the State Government of Sikkim has recommended the inclusion of these tribes in the list of Scheduled Tribes.

The Limboos and the Tamangs are inhabitants of remote and interior areas of the State of Sikkim which are not easily accessible. They have a sizable population having their own distinct historical background and culture. The Limboos were treated at par with the Lepchas and Bhutia Tribes of Sikkim even prior to the merger of Sikkim into the Union of India in the year 1975. The Tamangs are Buddhists by religion. They belong to the same ethnic group of Tibetan, Sheipas, Dukpas and Kagateys. While the above tribes belonging to the same ethnic group, have been included in the list of Scheduled Tribes, the Limboos and the Tamangs have been left out.

Therefore, to give them justice and in view of their economic, educational and social backwardness, the Limboo and Tamang tribes should be included in the List of Scheduled Tribes for the State of Sikkim by suitably amending the Constitution (Sikkim) Scheduled Tribes Order, 1978.

Moreover, in the Constitution (Sikkim) Scheduled Tribes Order, 1978, Bhutia tribe is shown to be including Chumbipa, Dopthapa, Dukpa Kagatey, Sherpa, Tibetan, Tromopa and Yolmo tribes. However, this is not a fact. All these tribes are separate from the Bhutia tribe. Representations have also been made to the President of India and the Prime Minister of India to show these tribes as separate tribes from the Bhutia tribe. The necessary corrective measure has not been taken so far. The Bill, therefore, seeks to rectify the situation.

 - (d) regulating the punishments and providing for appeals from or the revision of, orders of punishments, or the remission of fines or other punishments;
 - (e) any other matter which has to be, or may be, prescribed

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS

The crime on the railways, with the damage to the railway property and to the property of the train passengers has increased manifold. There are two agencies to combat crime on the railways—(1) the Kailway Protection Force and (11) the Government Railway Ponce. The Railway Protection Force is charged solely with the protection of railway property and the Government Railway Police is charged with the maintenance of law and order and to deal with other crimes on the railways. Reports of several Committees appointed by the Government of India to suggest better security and policing reveal that crime on the railways and with the railway property could not be arrested because the Railway Protection Force lacks legal powers of investigation and they depend upon the Government Railway Police, who are vested with all police powers. The Government Railway Police is not able to combat crime against railway property because of its engagement in maintenance of taw and order and the crimes with the property of the railway users.

The Railway Protection Forle Act, 1957, was amended in 1985 and the amendments made by the amending Act were not as per the spirit of recommendations of various Committees appointed from time to time to suggest ways and means for the better functioning of the Railway Protection Force. The Railway Protection Force was not given any legal powers of investigation and prosecution to deal effectively with various forms of crimes on the railway property.

Moreover, the amending Act was only a pretext to abrogate the fundamental right to form and continue association of the permanent Railway Protection Force personnel and shut their genuine aspirations. After the amendment of Railway Protection Force Act in 1985, the Railway Protection Force Associations, which enjoyed continuous recognition for 14 years, were banned and the avenues of promotion of permanent Railway Protection Force men were taken away by the deputationist IPS officers.

The Railway Protection Force men are civil servants/Railway employee for all purposes as per sections 9 to 10 of the Railway Protection Force Act, 1957, and within the meaning of article 311 of the Constitution of India. So, they should also be governed by/under a set of disciplinary and appeal rules applicable to other civil servants. Since the Railway Protection Force men are neither entrusted with the maintenance of public order nor with the security of the border of the country, they cannot be equated with the members of the defence and other para-military forces. So the Railway Protecton Force men can neither be governed under the disciplinary and appeal rules applicable to other armed forces nor they can be deprived of their fundamenal right to form service associations.

The Bill, therefore seeks to do away with the lacunae in the Railway Protection Force Act, 1957, which were created consequent on the amendment of the Act in 1985 and to make the Railway Protection Force, a more more condusive force for the better protection of railway property.

Provided that this shall not undernune in any way the powers of the Charman to take final decisions in such matters.

(11) Notwithstanding anything contained in article 240ZD; Panchayats and Municipalities with the jurisdiction of the Committee may recommend plans and projects to the Committee.".

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS

Despite huge amount of money spent by the Government, majority of the village are without basic facilities like drinking water, electricity; roads, transport; educational institutions, etc. Regional imbalances have widened due to lack of proper infra-structure. One of the major reasons for the backwardness of our villages is the faulty and centralised planning. Even in framing of plans and other schemes, the representatives of the people are not involved.

Therefore, it is proposed to amend the Constitution with a view to involving peoples' representatives in the formation of plans and projects in their constituencies and to vest them with more powers in the matter of planning and execution of plans and projects. As most of the plans and projects are not taken up due to financial constraints, it is proposed to allocate funds to constituency development Committees consisting of representatives of the people for taking up plans and projects in their constituencies.

Hence this Bill.

STATEMENT OF GBJECTS AND REASONS

Article 244(2) and Sixth Schedule to the Constitution of India provide for the administration of tribal areas in the States of Assam, Mechalaya, Impura and Mizoram and creation of autonomous districts in these States but there is no such constitutional provision for the State of Manpur.

Since about two-thirds of the entire area of the State of Manipur is inhabited by the tribal people and about one-third of its total population is comprised of tribals, it will be appropriate if the State of Manipur is included in the Sixth Schedule to the Consutution so as to preserve and promote the culture, language and common laws of the tribals in the State.

The Bill seeks to achieve the above objective.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS

India is a secular and democratic republic. The Constitution provides for freedom of religion to all its citizens and prohibits discrimination on the basis of religion, caste, place of birth, etc. Thus any law, rule or order which adopts religion as the sole basis of a certain dispensation of the State is violative of the spirit of the Constitution (Scheduled Castes) Order, 1950, providing for reservation and other benefits for Scheduled Castes has religion as its sole basis. Thus, a large section of socially and economically deprived people belonging to other religious groups are deprived of these benefits. The only reason for this state of affairs is that they belong to certain other religious groups. When the Constitution of India prohibits discrimination on the basis of religion, a Constitution order cannot legalise such discrimination. It is, therefore, necessary to amend the various Constitution orders in order to conform them to the dictates of the Constitution.

This Bill seeks to achieve the above purpose
